The Daily Standard.

Friday, July 22, 1870.; Contederation. Our morning contemporary see som en vious of the remarkable success of the founded assertions with respect to the STAND. STANDARD that no opportunity either in And, and it always does it in a personal way. season or out of season is lost to sow English journals are accustomed to address broad-cast the most unfounded state- each other in the impersonal, but our moraments against this journal. Its only ing contemporary never fails to speak of a ments against this journal. Its only hope of succeeding as a public journal seems to depend on such a course. Yet we know no class in town or country that can have any sympathy with a journal so conducted. It is natural, we know, for rattle-snakes to bite, for scorpions to sting, and for the Mephitis Americana to eject its noxious fluid, but it is perfectly unaccountable how a public journal like corrected on itself. If it is not envy and jealousy of the success of the Standard, we willie's dispatch arrived, none of the Railway jealousy of the success of the Standard, wille's dispatch arrived, none of the Railway jealousy of the success of the Standard, wille's dispatch arrived, none of the Railway jealousy of the success of the Standard, wille's dispatch arrived, none of the Railway jealousy of the success of the Standard, wille's dispatch arrived, none of the Railway jealousy of the success of the Standard, wille's dispatch arrived, none of the Railway ville's dispatch arrived ville's dispatch arrived ville's dispatch arrived ville's dispatch arrived ville's dis we know nothing that can account for its folly. Yesterday it engaged again in its accustomed avocation, and not, only the STANDARD but Mr. DeCosmos came in for the usual control of the usual control of the usual control of the usual control of the Railway agitators (that is, Waddington and others in England and Canada) seemed to have made much headway. At the Conference of Delegates from British North America in London, and Overland Railway was considered and described (in that report) as "a subject of the series of the control of the Railway agitators (that is, Waddington and others in England and Canada) seemed to have made much headway. At the Conference of Delegates from British North America in London, and Overland Railway was considered and described (in that report) as "a subject of the conference of Delegates from British North America in London, and Overland Railway was considered and described (in that report) as "a subject of the conference of Delegates from British North America in London, and Overland Railway was considered and described (in that report) as "a subject of the conference of Delegates from British North America in London, and Overland Railway was considered and described (in that report) as "a subject of the conference of Delegates from British North America in London, and Overland Railway was considered and described (in that report) as "a subject of the conference of Delegates from British North America in London, and Overland Railway was considered and described (in that report) as "a subject of the conference of Delegates from British North America in London, and Overland Railway was considered and described (in that report) as "a subject of the conference of Delegates from British North America in London, and Overland Railway was considered and described (in that report) as "a subject of the conference of Delegates from British North America in London, and Overland Railway was considered and described (in the conference of the conference of the conference of the conference of the jealousy of the success of the STANDARD, ville's dispatch arrived, none of the Railway came in for the usual quantum of misrepresentation. The Colonist is a singular journal indeed! Everybody is aware that it has talked most authoritatively of what it knew of the terms of confederation; but yesterday, it said, speaking of the terms. "it is known that then an Overland Railway was considered and described (in that report) as "a subject of the highest importance, and one to be promoted at the earliest stage that the finances of the country would admit of." The proposition made in this matter since 1867. I have no wish to claim any honor, or detract from that which is due to others; but we must recollect that $1,000,000 a year is not a Railway across ing of the terms, "it is known that they (the terms) have never been made public, either here or elsewhere, and all that has appeared, either in the Canadian or American papers concerning them, is little more than surmise." Now this assertion is either true or untrue. If true, pray how can the Colonist know anything? and are not all its vauntings of knowledge of the terms so much waste type and space? In its issue of July 12, it treated the telegram, containing a summary of the 1 o'clock. terms as published in the Bulletin, as "substantially correct ! !" Yesterday it charged the STANDARD with having adrised the public to look upon the tele-grams to the Bulletin and Globe as "substantially correct"-the self-same thing that it did itself !! We advised our readars to consider the financial part of the terms, without waiting for their forms and official publication. For this the Colonist denounces us yesterday, although it admitted, on July 20, that the terms republished in its columns from the Globe were, with perhaps one or two excep-tions, substantially correct." Now, if the terms be "substantially correct," why should we wait till they are officially announced before considering them-more particularly, as we have been told that it is not likely that the terms will made known officially till the Legisla tive Council meets? If our contemporary is used as the Government organ, we cas comprehend it to the letter. The public can do the same, and estimate its sistency as well as its value. The ludicrous part of the whole matter is that our contemporary says it "possesses means of information denied to" the STANDARD. Now, it can only have such means" as a Government organ—but that it has denied !! Any one who has watched its news about the terms, must have long ago arrived at the conclusion that it was posted after the telegram of the Bulletin and Globe came to hand, and not before. But the folly of the Colonist culminates, when it attacks Mr. DeCosmos about the Yale Convention, and for this reason: If the terms of Confederation are really unknown, as it says, (although the Colonist accepted the summary of the Bulletin on July 12th, and of the Globe in July 20th,) how does it know that they differ from the terms of the Yale Convention? Nothing shows more plainly than this contradiction that the attack made on Mr. DeCosmos is not in the public interest, but to serve the interests of the Colonist. Whatever others may have done to advance Confederation, so one can deny but that Mr. DeCosmos has done as much as any other one man in this Colony. As to the Yale Convention, as a mere political gathering to adwance Confederation and Responsible Government—he may well be proud of its success. The terms set forth in its resolutions prove incontestably that the Colonist uttered a gross misrepresentation when it stated that Mr. DeCosmos advocated the admission of the Colony into the Dominion "with-out any terms" or "on any terms"—a thing impossible under the British American Act. But the great blander of Mr. DeCosmos', says the organ, was in voting at Yale for the extension of the Revenue laws of Canada on Union taking place! Why since then,—in the last session of the Council,—he did the same; but he at the same time offered a provision to protect the interests of industry by local enactment,—so that the laws of the Dominion would not be interfered with, but at the same time a full measure of protection would be attained. The amusing part of the tirade of the Colorist against Mr. DeCosmos is that the editor of that paper was a prominent member of the Yale Convention and consented to its resolutions !! With the respect to the statement of the Colonist that the STANDARD and Mr. Decosmos is opposing Confederation, we have only to state that it has asserted what is talse, and everybody knows it. We have presented the terms to our readers-the

Any neglect on the part of our Carriere to diliver the STANDARD at the proper time and place will be promptly remedied on application at the Publication Office, next door to the Bank of British Columbia, Government

Substantially correct terms—and nave pointed out their value. That is our duty as a journal. We have no hesitancy however in stating that we believe that no matter what terms the Delegates may no matter what terms the Delegates may announce that they will be carried by the country and pase the Legislative Council, and that this Colony will speedily become part of the Dominion.

The Colonist with its waning influence tries to bring itself into notice by uttering unthat $1,000,000 a year is not a Railway across the Rocky Mountains." This extract clearly exonerates Mr. DeCosmos from the envious remarks of our contemporary. We take this occasion, however, to say that Attorney General Crease said in the Council, when moving the Railway resolution, that Mr. Trutch was the originator of the Railway clause. We care not who may be the originator or promoter, so long as we get the Railway.

The people of the British Provinces, would seem, have not fully made up their minds that consolidation under the Dominion minds that consolidation under the Dominion of Canada is the best thing they can do Hence a movement looking to independence, with an ultimate design of a union with the United States, is rapidly spreading. It is plainly evident that the tendency is toward annexation. Says the Chicago Republican: The Dominion can never hold together as a confederacy. It has no elements of cohe. confederacy. It has no elemen s of cohe rence among its people, or geographical con-tinuity of interest. As a part of the great republic, every Province would secure absolute ndependence as to its own affairs, and in a few years be so tied to adjacent States, by railways and telegraphs, that old lines would be obliterated, and every interest merged in a great continental development.
